خلاصه مقاله:

Determining the components of Good Governance is one of the mental concerns of the present human in the social sphere, which needs to be studied with a thought-based approach. In this paper, we try to extract the essential components of Good Governance during the 10-year government of Prophet Mohammad(PBUH) in Medina by using theories related to this field and referring to the Islamic thought and the Governmental Sire of him. Sire extraction was done according to the principles of Sire Researching and It has been analyzed by matching theoretical framework. So, in addition to looking at different patterns of state regeneration, new public services, and democratic models of Good Governance, the model of a democratic state, which includes six main components of Good Governance, is more conformity compared to other patterns for analyzing Sire in this subject. By using researchs in in this field, the components of Good Governance are: Legalism, Anti-Corruption, transparency, toleration, Justice-Based, Political participation, effectiveness, and responsibility.
