خلاصه مقاله:

Abstract There are various narrative books on Imam Ali's accounts about women. However, in some of these accounts, women character and identity are undermined and blamed. Some of these accounts in Nahjolbalgheh and elsewhere reflect women as intellectually deformed and incomplete, mean, unfaithful, and vulnerable to sins, etc. All these have led to multiple disagreements among scholars and commentators of Nahjolbalgheh. Apart from inauthenticity of the sources and documentation of the majority of these accounts, if sound principles and basics in understanding Islamic sayings and accounts are not employed, such accounts are in controversy with the norms and criteria of the sublime Quran, tradition, reason, the status of the Innocent Imams, and the historical events. What is accepted and approved in Islamic perspectives and Alavi life-style and manners is the equity of men and women in creation and personal dimensions, yet, at the same time, this is not incongruent with the nature of female gender and the differences related to it.
