خلاصه مقاله:

One of the most important issues in the foreign policy of any country is the ability to use all its potential, especially in the economic field. The strategic importance of diplomacy in today's world is not hidden from anyone. One of the new and powerful tools of governments for communication in the international arena and achieving a more appropriate and better position in the global economy is the use of economic diplomacy. Economic diplomacy is formal diplomatic action that facilitates access to foreign markets for national businesses, seeks to attract foreign investment, and emphasizes the influence of international law to advance national interests. The purpose of this study is to examine the economic diplomacy of the Government of the Islamic Republic of Iran from a financial perspective. The research has been descriptive and exploratory in terms of implementation process and is an applied result. The results show that considering the limitations of economic diplomacy, Iran in the past few decades shows low quality of economic growth, high dependence on capital stock and low productivity of factors of production, so Iran has not been able to have a strong economic diplomacy with other countries. Therefore, the government of the Islamic Republic of Iran can not be considered a leading country in the field of economic diplomacy.
