خلاصه مقاله:

The problem of Iran nuclear program is due to the very tough positions of the parties involved, on the one hand, the security concerns of Israel with the support of the United States and the strong positions of Iran on the other hand, which is still a main source of tension and dangers for peace and security in the Middle East region. Despite efforts to find a middle ground, through the ۲۰۱۵ nuclear deal, an agreement that recognized Iran's right to master nuclear technology, but at the same time tried to block its path to a nuclear military. This solution became incited by Israel and the Jewish lobby when the Trump administration withdrew from the agreement in ۲۰۱۸. Although the current US administration (Joe Biden) is trying to reactivate the ۲۰۱۵ agreement, several new factors prevent its rapid return and, on the contrary, may even lead to a destructive military confrontation between Israel and Iran in the Middle East
