خلاصه مقاله:

Iran and India have not only had a single cultural root since ancient times, but in later periods, when the expansion of the population and mixing with native cultures caused changes in these two human populations, they continued to have a deep connection in the cultural fields. , have preserved scientific, economic and political. In the modern era and with the emergence of new concepts and relationships between nations and governments, the strategic relationship between Iran and India, which affects Asia and the world, has become very important. In the present article, these strategic relations have been examined in six areas: history, geography, culture, education, economy and politics. In the research methodology, from a qualitative and practical point of view, based on the available documents, the mentioned parameters in the relations between Iran and India have been discussed with the analytical-descriptive method. Although the relations between Iran and India have suffered from weaknesses in periods under the influence of powerful global forces, both sides of this relationship have always tried to establish economic relations at the level of cultural and scientific communication between professors, researchers and students. The communication channels between India as a powerful country in agriculture and industry and Central Asia, and providing the needs of both sides in the oil and gas industry, and in politics with the spiritual and functional support of both sides in international conflicts should continue to exist. In this article, an attempt has been made to .analyze the various angles of these relationships
