

عنوان مقاله:

Moral Living from the Perspective of Thomas Aquinas

محل انتشار:

مجله بین المللی اخلاق و جامعه، دوره 6، شماره 1 (سال: 1403)

تعداد صفحات اصل مقاله: 9

نویسندگان:

Michael Makariev - Department of Philosophy, Faculty of Philosophy and Psychology, American University in Bulgaria, Bulgaria

Pedro Alaribo - Department of Philosophy, Faculty of Philosophy and Psychology, American University in Bulgaria, Bulgaria

Serdar Archanov - Department of Philosophy, Faculty of Philosophy and Psychology, American University in Bulgaria, Bulgaria

خلاصه مقاله:

Introduction: Ethical living is a lifestyle in which all areas of human existence and work are formed and flow around ethics. That is, a person who wants to live morally, in all areas, tries to know the ethical considerations related to that area and follow them in practice and live according to them. The current article is research on the moral system of Thomas Aquinas with a focus on examining the nature of the moral goal of human life and the moral rationality of such a life. Material and Methods: The present review study examined bioethics from the perspective of Thomas Aquinas in a descriptive manner. In order to achieve this goal, articles related to research keywords from Thomson Information Institute, Science Direct and Pub Med were examined and books related to the views of Thomas Aquinas were studied. Conclusion: The results of this study show that according to Thomas Aquinas's view on man, becoming like God and realizing God's image in material life and seeing God in the hereafter is the moral goal and eternal happiness of man. Also, Thomas Aquinas believes in the moral rationality of such a life from both perspectives - having a reason to live morally and the usefulness of such a life

کلمات کلیدی:

Thomas Aquinas, Moral living, Moral rationality

لینک ثابت مقاله در پایگاه سیویلیکا:

<https://civilica.com/doc/1969692>

